Art Unit: 3738

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-17 and 20-24, drawn to methods of implanting an intracorneal implant, classified in class 606, subclass 107.
- II. Claims 18-19, drawn to dissectors for forming an intracorneal cavity, classified in class 606, subclass 166.
- III. Claim 25, drawn to an intracorneal insert, classified in class 623, subclass 5.

(Note: It is assumed that claims 22 and 23 are intended to depend from a method claim rather than from dissector claim 18.)

Inventions I and II are related as process and apparatus for its practice. The inventions are distinct if it can be shown that either: (1) the process as claimed can be practiced by another materially different apparatus or by hand, or (2) the apparatus as claimed can be used to practice another and materially different process. (MPEP § 806.05(e)). In this case, the dissector as set forth in claim 18 can be used to form a set of arc shaped channels for arc shaped implants rather than a circular channel with a continuous ring implant; instead of the kit of claim 19, the methods as claimed can be performed with a single dissector which is expandable by inflation, temperature effects, mechanical means, etc. to widen the channel.

Inventions I and III are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case, the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process such as the creation of a large circular incision to receive the insert or the injection of curable material to form the continuous ring shape.

Inventions II and III are related as subcombinations disclosed as usable together in a single combination. The subcombinations are distinct from each other if they are shown to be separately usable. The inventions have separate utility, as explained above. (Reference is made to MPEP § 806.05(d).)

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classifications and divergent required searches, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).
